Comment	My propery is one of a pair of old attached cottages - mine (142) is the north dwelling, 140 to the south. The application plan drawn does not accurately reflect the current building. The property is already extended over 3 metres from the original back wall of the building (ex a back porch), across part of the width of the property. This proposal therefore represents an extension of over 9 metres from the original back wall and in its entirety doubles the size of the building footprint. The character and design of the cottages does not reflect modern building styles - so have low ceilings. The proposal to extend to a maximum height of 4 metres is therefore inappropriate and would take the height to the upstairs bedroom windows. (3 mtrs is the height of the upstairs bedroom windows - 4mtrs is not a single storey in terms of this building) The proposed extension would run along the south boundary of my property and will significantly affect the light coming into both my home and garden. We back open farm land and with such an extension to the south, the current open aspect will be entirely lost. It would feel like the back of my home is in an enclosed tunnel. I very much object to an extension of this size.
